DETAILED ACTION

Election/Restrictions

1. Applicants cancel claims 1-10, 13, 16, and 19 without prejudice; and applicants elect Group IV, claims 11-12, 14-15, 17-18 and 20-31 (which are added) for reconsideration.

Claim Objections

2. Claims 26-28 are objected to because of the following informalities: they are dependent to canceled claim 1. Appropriate correction is required.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC 102

3. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless --

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

4. Claims 11-12, 14-15, 17-18 and 20-31 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Brown et al. (U.S. Patent No. 6,650,694 B1).

Regarding claim 11, Brown teaches a method of performing a plurality of segmentable search tasks in a single searcher comprising interrupting a first search task in progress, storing state information for the first search task, performing a second search task; accessing state information for the first search task; and continuing the first search task using the accessed state information, i.e., multitasking is performed at the CCP 100 (col. 1/lines 45-61 for CCP 100; and col. 6/lines 35-64 for multitasking machine) and different search tasks are identified and distinguished by IDs in index, and interrupting can be occurred on an individual basis and state information or statuses of each tasks is stored in a memory, as in col. 2/lines 12-31, and the host processor manages and controls all the event tasks, (refer to col. 23/line 20 to col. 24/line 31 within a CDMA searcher).

As for claim 12, this claim is similar to claim 11 above, with the step of selecting a first storage element for storing partial results and state information for the first search task and similarly, for the second search task is also taught by Brown (refer to col. 2/lines 12-31 again for partial correlation results stored in the memories).

(Claim 13 was canceled).

As for claims 14-15, these processor readable media claims with same features as noted earlier in claims 11-12 are rejected for the reasons given in the scope of claims 11-12 above.

(Claim 16 was canceled).

As for claims 17-18, Brown teaches a single searcher for performing a plurality of segmentable search tasks as cited earlier in claims 11-12 (CCP 100 is the single searcher, refer to col. 6/lines 35-42).

(Claim 19 was canceled).

As for claim 20, Brown teaches an apparatus comprising two or more storage elements that store state information associated with two or more search tasks (refer again to col. 6/lines 34-63).

As for claims 21-25, Brown teaches more than two or more search tasks are performed within a searcher CCP 100, either a non-coherent or coherent accumulator, partial accumulations from which are stored in ones of the two or more storage elements, col. 2/lines 12-43, and a peak detector and a sorter for detecting and finding a slot for storing state information (col. 23/line 39 to col. 24/line 31 by using including finger ID, DPE search ID, LCI search ID and SSC ID).

As for claims 26-28, Brown also teaches these features as a processor connected to the two or more storage elements, operable to load and retrieve state information therefrom; and the storage elements are either located in a RAM (temporary memories are used, see col. 2/lines 19-30, or in banks of registers (col. 11/line 63 to col. 12/line 13 for FIFO registers).

As for claims 29-31, Brown further teaches these method claims with similar features as in claims 11-12 now with methods of partitioning a first search task into a plurality of search segments, and the length of time to process each segment being less than or equal to a contiguous segment of time allotted for processing the first task and performing a plurality of alternate search tasks and the time being processed between the processing of ones of the plurality of search segments of the first search tasks (col. 21/line 63 to col. 22/line 22).
